Allow Chrome to install unknown apps by going to Settings > Apps > Menu > Accessibility > Install Unknown Apps. Install a file manager (such as Cx File Explorer or File Manager) so you can find the APK file on your computer after downloading. phone. Download the APK file and open it to install. Also, transfer the APK installer from your PC via USB. If you want to use the app outside of the Google Play Store, you can install the APK file of the app. This article explains how to install APK on Android 7 or later. Before you can download APK files using Chrome or any other browser, you must first enable unknown apps: open your device's settings and tap Apps & notifications (or Apps in older Android versions). A clickthree dots in the upper right corner. Click Special Access. Click Install Unknown Apps. Click Chrome (or whatever web browser you're using). Move Allow from this source to On Now that you have set your phone to install unknown apps, you need to find the app file (APK file) on your phone to run it. Android phones usually come with a file manager app that you can use, but if you don't have one, look for one of the best Android file managers on Google Play. For example, you can download Cx File Explorer or File Manager. The easiest way to install an APK file on Android is to download the file using the default Chrome browser. Find the website that offers the Android app and click on the link to download the APK file. Accept all pop-ups including "This file type may damage your device". Only download APKs from trusted sources. A quick Google search can often tell you if an app (or the company behind it) has a shady reputation. If your phone's web browser does not allow you to open the file after you download it, open the file browser, navigate to the Downloads folder on your device, then tap the APK file. Grant the app any necessary permissions it asks for. Then click Install at the bottom of the installation window. Now you will see the available app in the list of installed apps. If you don't have Internet access on your phone or otherwise can't use the browser to download the file, you can still install apps from your computer. Download the APK file using your computer's web browser as described above. Once downloaded, connect to your Android phone and upload the file. If you have never connected your Android to a computer, enable USB debugging mode in Android. Then you can connect your phone to your computer with a USB cable and your phone will be installed like a memory card. When you connect your phone to your computer, it will appear as another drive in yoursConductor. Move the APK file that you downloaded from the app's website to the phone's /sdcard/download folder. After transferring the file, use the file viewer app on your phone as described in the previous section to tap on the APK file and install the app. If you don't have a USB cable, another solution is to install a WiFi FTP server from Google Play. Then use a free FTP client program on your computer (e.g. download FileZilla) to transfer the APK file from your computer to your phone's /sdcard/download folder. However, this is an advanced option that requires an understanding of how FTP files are used. If the APK installer doesn't launch when you click it, an advanced solution might work. You can install APK file on your Android device from PC using Minimal ADB and Fastboot tool. Connect your phone via USB and enable USB debugging. Download Minimal ADB and Fastboot on your PC and then install it. Run the tool and a command window will open. Once your phone is connected to your computer using a USB cable, enter the adb devices command. When the tool detects your phone, the device ID will appear in the list of connected devices. You can now transfer the APK file. Using Windows Explorer, locate the downloaded APK file on your computer. Right-click the file and choose Copy. In Windows Explorer, navigate to the Minimal ADB and Fastboot folder (usually c:\Program Files (x86)\Minimal ADB and Fastboot). Paste the APK file into this folder. Rename the APK file to something short so it can be easily typed as a command. In the same command window you opened earlier, enter the name of the ADB installer app (replace it with the name of your APK file). If you see the word Success, the app is installed on your phone. APK (Android Package Kit) is a file type that installs an Android application. It comes as an executable file (EXE) for Windows or as a package installer (PKG) for Mac. If you haveyou have installed android app from google play store and then used apk file without realizing it. Once you click the "Install" button, Google Play will automate the process of transferring the APK file to your phone and run it for you. If the Android app you want to install is not available on Google Play, you can download the APK file from the Internet and install it manually. There are many sites where you can find non-Google Play apps to install. For example, visit Apk Pure, Apk Directory Reddit, or APKMirror. FAQ Can APK files damage your Android? Maybe. Any file you download online can contain a virus, so it's important to only download APK files from secure sources. Can I delete APK files on my Android? Yes. APK files are only used to install apps, so you can delete the APK file after installing the app. What is ConfigAPK for Android? ConfigAPK is pre-installed on Android devices.
